A brand new day - 8x26'

The documentary series offers a poignant immersion into the journey of transgender people before, during, and after their gender-affirming surgery. Through intimate testimonies and never-before-seen footage, the series highlights the challenges, hopes, and transformations experienced by patients, while revealing the work of the healthcare professionals involved in this process. This documentary stands out for its sensitive and respectful approach, aiming to demystify gender-affirming surgeries and raise public awareness of the realities experienced by trans people.

Alexandre Dumas, lust for life - 1x52'

Through the lesser-known works of one of the world's most famous writers, Dumas, des mets et des mots explores Alexandre Dumas' life from a fresh perspective. From the forests of Picardy to Roscoff and the Caucasus mountains, the documentary takes us on a journey tracing the footsteps of this unique artist, known for his insatiable appetite. A key event is a banquet held in Dumas' childhood home, where a chef reimagines dishes from his Grand Dictionnaire de Cuisine, published posthumously. Revisiting this work reveals a complex figure shaped by a turbulent family history, a thirst for social justice, and an exuberance for life that epitomized the 19th century. How did this grandson of a slave become a literary giant?

Animals inside out

- 2x52'

Survival is a game of strategy. This two-part series unveils the remarkable skills that have allowed wild animals to endure for millions of years—sometimes as predators, sometimes as prey.

Beginner at autism

- 1x52'

A year ago, Louis T. received his diagnosis in his psychologist's office: he has had Asperger's syndrome, a form of autism spectrum disorder, his entire life. Since coming out to the media last year, he's been flooded with questions from the public every day.

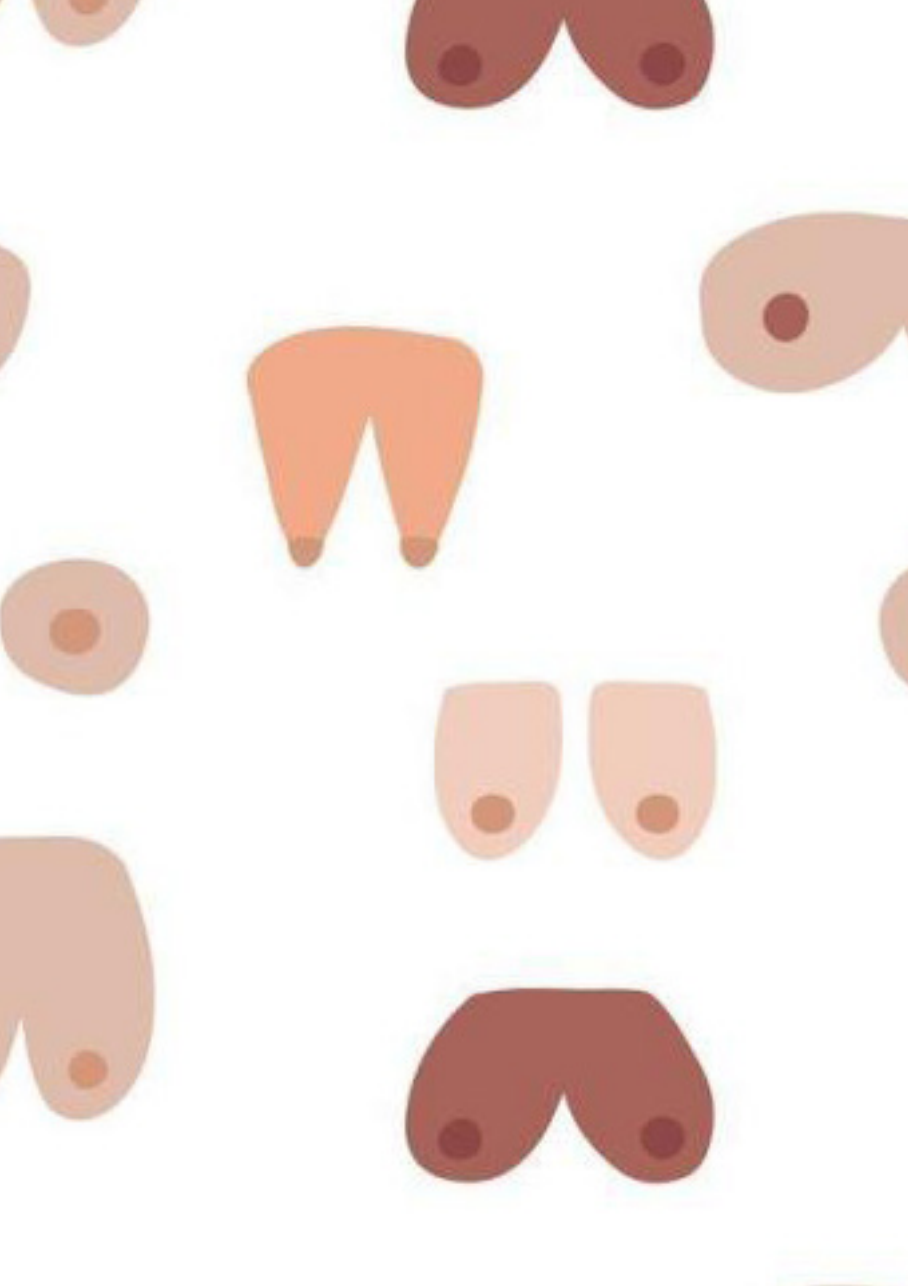

Faced with these inquiries, Louis feels completely at a loss. Yes, the diagnosis has been incredibly liberating for him, but there's one truth that troubles him: «The truth is, I know nothing about autism. I'm new to this!» he says. It's to answer these questions—and especially his own about autism—that the comedian embarks on a documentary journey, like an apprentice eager to learn everything about this new chapter of his life.

Below, underwater territories - 5x24' - In development

A group of divers will lift the veil on the oceans mysteries by giving a close-up look at the underwater fauna and flora. Choosing to free dive and not to share their diving coordinates in order to not disturb the biodiversity, these eco-divers educate us about a world that is so close to us but yet unknown to the greater number.

Bless our breasts - 1x90' or 1x52'

Bless our breasts is a documentary that explores the perception and representation of the female chest in society. It examines how this part of the body, often sexualized, is shaped by social and cultural expectations. The film looks at the pressures faced from a young age, when the chest becomes a symbol of femininity, and addresses practices such as "breast flattening" and cosmetic surgery, which alter bodies to fit certain societal ideals. Through testimonies and analysis, the documentary examines how these norms affect body image and invites reflection on the relationship women have with their own bodies.

Daily science - 13x52' - In production

Daily Science is the documentary series that will help you understand your day to day life through the lense of science. Each episode will focus on one topic and tackle questions we all asked ourselves at least once. How does our body work, what is really in my plate, what is the purpose of this technology, ...? Scientists, entrepreneurs, expert journalists will help us investigate these topics and enlighten us!

Echoes of the Sahara

- 2x52'

For eight months, Justine and Thomas are traveling by bicycle from Paris to Dakar. These two adventure enthusiasts have been leading eco-expeditions for several years. Involved in environmental organizations and giving talks on eco-adventures, this year they have decided to undertake a documentary project to get as close as possible to the field and its realities. Their journey from Paris to Dakar aims to discover what solutions local people in the Saharan region are developing to face the challenges of climate change. This major adventure will be divided into two distinct but complementary documentaries. The first, set in Tunisia and Algeria, explores how Saharan communities are combating drought—perhaps the greatest challenge facing all desert inhabitants. After addressing this broad issue, the second documentary, from Morocco to Senegal, focuses on Saharan housing and the solutions developed to ensure its sustainability. These two films will be connected through the human adventure of traveling from Paris to Dakar, which will serve as a backdrop and an invitation to watch both films to gain a comprehensive view of the solutions emerging across the Saharan region. The climate issues we wish to explore are complementary: if no solutions are found to limit the impact of drought, some areas will eventually become uninhabitable.

Eurodyssey: a journey through Europe's rivers - 1x52

From the English Channel to the Black Sea, Eurodyssey is a kayak journey across Europe, meeting those who fight for the survival of our waterways. It's six months spent on the water — feeling its power, moving forward day after day, and sleeping each night by its side. Along the way, encounters made on or near the water will give a voice to the canals, rivers, and streams crossed, helping the audience realize that our waterways are more than static geographical features. Our rivers are alive — but they can also die. They are homes, timeless communication routes, natural borders, and cultural symbols that were once even elevated to the status of deities (for instance, in ancient Celtic mythology, the River Seine was seen as the goddess Sequana, whose cult was closely tied to that of water). This film seeks simply to remind us of that ancient reality — and of the crucial role rivers will play in the world of tomorrow.

Fletcher street - 1x52' - In production

In North Philadelphia's Strawberry Mansion, where poverty, violence, and racism define the streets, the Fletcher Street stables stand as an unexpected refuge. This documentary follows Main, a 17-year-old African American who has faced trauma, loss, and the lure of gangs. Every morning, he crosses blocks of abandoned houses to reach the horses that give him calm, strength, and hope. Through his journey, the film captures the struggles and dreams of a generation fighting for identity, dignity, and a place in society. Visceral, emotional, and timely, it's more than a portrait of one young man—it's a window into the realities of today's youth, and the power of community to rewrite their future.

Free way - 1x52' or 1x90'

Free Way dives into the mind and creativity of chef Raül Balam. Marked by years of drug addiction, his path to excellence in the culinary world was far from easy. Inspired by his mother, renowned chef Carme Ruscalleda, Raül overcame his struggles to rediscover himself. Blending high-level cuisine with his bold Instagram persona, this documentary follows his journey after the closure of Sant Pau, his mother's 3-star restaurant.

Hey, check out my penis - 1x45'

This film explores the phenomenon of «dick pics»—unsolicited photos of penises—by examining the motivations of the men who send them and the impact on those who receive them. Through firsthand accounts, expert analysis, and a non-judgmental approach, the documentary examines themes such as desire, power, exhibitionism, narcissism, sexism, and fear of rejection. The aim is to understand the reasons behind this phenomenon and to open a dialogue on sexuality and consent.

Homo GASTRONOMICUS

2X52'

Homo gastronomicus

- 2x52' - In production

Homo Gastronomicus deciphers cuisine through history, science, culture, ecology and economics. Like an illustrated encyclopedia, Homo Gastronomicus creates a new graphic grammar to serve pedagogy. Animated maps, historical reconstructions, dynamic botanical plates, laboratory experiments, Homo Gastronomicus takes the great products of cuisine and tastes them in a documentary collection that explores elsewhere through the local.

Hope - 6x52'

Hope is a six-part series that takes us on a journey to discover powerful solutions to climate change, told through personal stories across four continents. Narrated by Jane Goodall and Gael García Bernal, it explores how farmers, scientists, activists, and others are changing the world.

Islands untold - 2x52'

The French Overseas Territories still hold little-known treasures, secret territories whose discovery is well worthwhile. To explore them, you must be willing to step away from the obvious, meet those who know their mysteries, and be willing to surpass yourself. This is the goal set for themselves by the passionate duo Sabine Quindou and Yves Paccalet.

Kayaking the river Somme - 1x52'

Tortuga, a young explorer who has just returned from an adventure in Lapland — having already crossed Iceland on foot and lived like a nomad in Mongolia — is now embarking on a new adventure, closer to home and more human: kayaking down the Somme River. A journey marked by the discovery of the region's heritage and the warm welcomes of his followers who track his progress along the way.

Life at the vet - 26x26'

Vet Life follows Dr. Raymond Plasse and his team through the hectic days of a veterinary hospital, where small joys follow major dramas. Each episode offers an authentic glimpse into the daily lives of veterinarians, from animal care and difficult decisions to bonding with their four-legged friends. The series highlights the passion, challenges, and emotions experienced by those who dedicate their lives to animal health.

Life in the heights - 1x52'

In the Pyrenees, a bold shepherdess and a secretive bear share the same mountain. They both keep watch: one over her daughter and her flock, the other over her two cubs. Each, in her own way, safeguards the delicate balance of life in the mountains. Will they ever meet?

Life on the rocks - 1x52'

The mountain goat is a legendary being and one of the toughest animals. It eats anything, endures extreme cold and heat, and inhabits the steepest landscapes in the world, where no one can follow it. In the last National Park in Europe, Guadarrama Peaks, there is a thriving colony of male goats. We will attend their impressive fights, their funny courtships and their incorrect sexuality. We will see how a large male grows and dies, as a mirror of what happens to the species that is increasingly threatened with extinction.

Limitless love - 10x26'

Limitless love follows the journey of six single people living with a difference as they seek love. Accompanied by matchmakers, they embark on blind dates, exploring the challenges and prejudices associated with their differences. Through their stories, the series highlights the realities of dating for people with disabilities, while celebrating diversity and inclusion.

Menstrual revolution

- 1x90' or 1x52'

Millions of women worldwide, between the ages of 15 and 50, experience the menstrual cycle—an event that occurs nearly 450 times over the course of their lives. Yet, for centuries, menstruation has been shrouded in ignorance, taboo, and suffering.

Today, however, a new paradigm is emerging, embraced by thousands of women across the globe who advocate for a more open, conscious, and empowering approach to their menstrual health.

Post-war France: the challenge of reconstruction - 1x52'

In 1945, the entire French territory was finally liberated after five years of war and occupation.

But the destruction inflicted on the country during these dark years was terrible. Once the war was over, bridges, roads, and factories had to be rebuilt. The victims had to be rehoused, and the cities had to be rebuilt. A titanic task.

So, extraordinary forces were deployed throughout France. In just 10 years, the country would recover.

In Royan as in Marseille, in Brest as in Le Havre, engineers and architects would recreate entire cities, invent new forms, new structures, and rebuild using new and innovative techniques.

This would be the great adventure, crazy and ingenious, tragic and exciting, of the Reconstruction of France.

Riviera food tour - 20x26'

Elian and Rodrigue set off to discover the emblematic regions of the Riviera and its characteristic ingredients, with a touch of humor.

Sentinels of Antarctica

- 1x52'

For 70 years, Antarctica — the continent at the very bottom of the planet — has been protected by an international treaty that designates it as a safeguarded land: a continent without borders, without weapons, and whose resources are not exploited. Argentina and Chile are the countries closest to Antarctica and, for that reason, claim a permanent presence on the peninsula. For Argentina, this presence even extends to supporting families who take turns living there each year, despite the harsh climate. Travel writer Cédric Gras sets out to meet these families at the Esperanza Base. In total, eight families, including 18 children aged 4 to 16, live amid gentoo penguins, Weddell seals, and sea lions, enduring temperatures as low as -45°C and winds exceeding 150 km/h. It is an extraordinary adventure for the southernmost human colony on the planet, whose permanent presence is primarily driven by geopolitical interests.

Shapers of tomorrow

- Season 2 - 12x52'

The Shapers of Tomorrow are back for a second season. Scientists, engineers, researchers, architects, teachers, they are all working towards a better future whether it is in health security, transport, environment, ... From great discoveries to new technologies, they are behind the discoveries and inventions that will design our future life to make it brighter, smarter and more sustainable.

Storks & lions adapt or die - 1x52'

Wildlife is deeply affected by human activity. In the last 1500 years 900 species have disappeared for ever, many others, like lions, could meet the same end soon. However, some animals, such as white storks, have adapted to our presence. They have changed their behavior, their migrating habits, their reproductive pattern, the places where they nest and even their diet. And so, they are proliferating! On the contrary, it would seem that lions do not know how to adapt to us. Out of half a million, today only 20,000 survive! Every species influences the rest, but we are quickly modifying landscapes and ecosystems and changing all rules. We may be forcing things a little too much?

Tasting the world - 10x52'

Pizza, French Fries, Sandwiches, Pastries: those meals are among the most globally eaten. Yet, can you tell confidently that you really know them? Where do they come from? How are they made? Where can you find their best representatives? From their history to their most remarkable fabrication secrets, there is so much about them you can't simply find in a plate. With the new collection "Tasting the World", it's finally time to get the answers you deserve about these inescapable meals. Travel the world, from Paris to New York, and discover the surprising secrets of our most beloved food!

The golden owl hunt

- 1x90'

This documentary tells the astonishing story of a game that escaped its creators, transforming into the world's longest treasure hunt. On one side, a marketing plan established in 1993 based on the idea of two men: an ambitious advertising executive who conceptualized a truly accomplished treasure hunt, and a wealthy artist in search of fame. On the other, hundreds of thousands of players in France and abroad. At the center, a solid gold owl worth 1 million old francs, or nearly 150,000 euros, is up for grabs. Nothing will go as planned. The treasure hunt will last much longer than predicted in the business plan, and the game's two creators will engage in a veritable battle of egos. The immense community of «owl-hunters»—as they call themselves—that formed in 1993 will take over the game, now the world's longest treasure hunt. The adventure has lasted for more than thirty years, punctuated by interventions from bailiffs, lawyers, and conspiracy theories.

The green island lab

- 1x52'

The island of Réunion is one of the first overseas territories to commit to the fight against climate change. Increasingly exposed to the effects of global warming, it aims to completely phase out fossil fuels by 2030. This transition is built on an energy mix that combines abundant natural resources—sun, wind, water, and biomass—with technological innovation. The Réunion model relies on an alliance between researchers, industry leaders, and public decision-makers. It transforms the constraints of insularity into opportunities, making Réunion a true, full-scale laboratory for the energy transition of the territories of the future.

The journey to parenthood: challenges of assisted reproduction - 1x90' or 1x52'

Medicine today offers unprecedented possibilities to fulfill the desire to have a child, which is truly remarkable. Yet, the journey of Medically Assisted Procreation (MAP) remains a challenging experience for many. Illness, loss, long waiting times, impact on daily life, invasive and sometimes painful procedures... this path carries a significant physical and emotional cost. Many women feel, at best, inadequately supported, and at worst, infantilized or burdened with guilt. As is often the case in reproductive health, access to information is limited, the sense of agency over one's body can be compromised, and resources are frequently insufficient to meet needs. What can one expect today when all they desire is something life cannot grant naturally: a child? And what should we demand from our institutions to ensure that MAP becomes truly accessible and equitable for everyone?

The sunriders - 1x52'

The story of Matthieu and Damien, two 24 years old friends who decide to set off on an adventure after their studies. They set themselves the challenge of cycling from France to Singapore. From the Iranian hospitality, to the Buddhist temples of Thailand, through the desert regions of Central Asia, the movie retraces their adventures, difficulties and encounters along the way. An inspiring, emotional and epic movie that will undoubtedly inspire you to set off on your own.

The threat of the pantanal - 1x52'

The Brazilian Pantanal is an exuberant, wild and spectacular sanctuary. But this year, the rains have not come and the waters have not risen, so the behavior of the animals here is going to be profoundly altered. Millions of alligators, howling monkeys and the fearsome marabunta live this delicate ecosystem. Birds, insects and enormous tarantulas of a thousand colors will have to manage to eat and drink this so strange year... Many of the world natural paradises today are hot spots that have been severely damaged and could be about to disappear...

Unconventional families - 13x26'

The series explores atypical families who choose to live differently — whether they are nomadic, minimalist, multigenerational, early retirees, self-sufficient in the woods, or those who follow more alternative models.

Urbex mountains - 1x52'

While brownfield sites, old buildings, etc., are most often found in urban areas, Anthony Binst takes us to the mountains. An exploratory journey with Jean Toub, a pioneer of urbex, who will guide Anthony to long-forgotten places: summer camps, holiday villages, dying ski resorts... A dive into the 70s and 80s, into this past that today disfigures the landscapes, to discover places that a few crazy people have decided to revive.

Vanished: Victoria Charlton investigates

- 12x26'

The documentary series delves into cases of mysterious disappearances in Quebec. Hosted by YouTuber and true crime author Victoria Charlton, the series explores unsolved cases often overlooked by mainstream media. In each episode, Victoria conducts field investigations, interviews witnesses, consults archives, and enlists the help of her community to gather new information and attempt to advance the investigations. The first season focuses on the disappearances of Francis Albert-Cloutier, Philippe Lajoie, and Mélissa Blais. The second season expands the investigation to other cases, including those of Nathalie Champigny, Nathalie Godbout, and Linda Normandin, providing fresh perspectives and deepening the research to provide answers to the families involved.

Zodiac - 1x90' or 1x52'

For millennia, humanity has gazed at the sky in search of meaning—a universal quest that connects us across time and civilizations. Long before the Greek scholars, the Babylonians invented a celestial language still in use today: the zodiac. An international team of astronomers, historians, and archaeologists brings this forgotten revolution back to life, from cuneiform tablets to giant telescopes, revealing how these pioneers anticipated our algorithmic thinking and shaped a shared cosmic legacy.

SCIENCE

A year at Pic du Midi

1x52'

The Pic du Midi de Bigorre is a multi-faceted mountain, an old lady whose history is rich in several lives and whose aura dominates an entire territory. With the installation of a scientific platform, then an astronomical observatory, with its recent opening to the general public, it has been able to constantly evolve and reinvent itself. To portray this mountain is to hear the science that is practiced there, the history that is transmitted there, the tourism that it engenders, the poetry that emerges from it. "The 4 seasons of the Pic du Midi" accompanies this old lady over time, listening to fall asleep at fall, roar in winter, calm down in spring and shine in summer.

AI, to be or not to be

3x52' - format

For the first time, a documentary series questions the limits of human beings, in an era where machines are becoming more and more intelligent.

A journalist sets out to create his digital double by drawing on his personal data and using existing technologies, including Artificial Intelligence. The development of his virtual replica confronts him with his own limits. What meaning can be given to life if machines can replace humans? Each advance in AI raises new ethical and existential questions. Will the journalist go through with the experiment? Will he come out of it unscathed?

SUSTAINABLE

Bora Bora, lab for the future

1x52'

4K

Bora Bora is the most popular destination in French Polynesia, certainly because of its lagoon, considered the most beautiful lagoon in the world. In this context, the islet could have sunk under concrete and pollution, and the reef could have been irreparably impacted. However, thanks to the will of a handful of inhabitants, including the mayor of the island, Bora Bora is today a model of sustainable development, with water treatment technologies that are 15 years ahead of France, programs for restoring corals and safeguarding wildlife, educational actions and rehabilitation of Polynesian traditions such as the "rahui" and the establishment of a monitoring network using new technologies.

Lights off

1x52'

Researchers have demonstrated that light pollution contributes to the alteration of biodiversity. Naturalist associations and amateur astronomers are joining forces to raise awareness about this subject. Together, they act to offer alternatives to night lighting as it exists today.

The goal is to rediscover the natural cycle of day and night and our connection to the stars. Astronomers are convinced life came from the stars as a shooting star hit the Earth in the area we are traveling through several million years ago. Researchers suggest that these star scars could be the origin of the first forms of life on Earth. Our relationship with the night and the living is evolving, from the infinitely large to the infinitely small, we would all be dependent on the stars. It's time to return them to their place in the darkness.

They have super sensors and super armour. They are super builders, super sturdy, super slippery, super strong and super economical. And they are all around us. Alive. How can we use the potential of flora and fauna, the greatest athletes of the natural world, to our advantage? How can we get inspired by the phenomenal powers of nature and copy the supersolutions that it has developed through evolution in order to respond to specific human needs, solve all our problems and limit or repair the damage that has already been done by human activity? Through the prism of biomimicry, SUPERNATURE will tell the story of a more desirable and sustainable world thanks to 3D Effects and CGIs. It is a prospective series where we will gradually reveal what our future will be like.

Thawing of permafrost, a ticking bomb

1x52'

Permafrost is this layer of frozen earth that makes up 25% of the land surface of the northern hemisphere. Formed during the last ice age, it has, by freezing, imprisoned a large number of elements: organic matter, gas, bacteria, viruses... The story could end there. But now, over the past thirty years, global warming has multiplied by 7 the rate of permafrost thawing. Here it wakes up and, in doing so, releases greenhouse gases that accelerate its own thawing, but also bacteria and viruses. It could even harbor countless infectious foci. What are the scientists' predictions? Is it already too late.

NATURE

The amazing plants kingdom

1x52'

Recent scientific discoveries are shaking up certainties about a world that we thought was very different from ours. In France, Belgium and Germany, researchers have decided to delve into the plant world to try to understand the functioning and deep nature of plants. If certain interpretations are currently debated, specialists from different disciplines agree on the fact that we should redefine our terms of sensitivity, communication, intelligence and recognize that plants are endowed with them, in their own way and with their own biology.

A unique documentary that reviews prejudices about plants and raises awareness that it is high time to consider them better.

MEGASTRUCTURE

The great adventure of France

1x90'

Forerunner of cruise ships, the last of the great transatlantic liners, the ship alone embodies the grandeur and the decline of maritime transport. The opportunity to understand that beyond the myth, the France, completely innovative in its time, allowed the emergence of several technologies that have become the keystones of shipbuilding. The documentary unveils the secrets of this "monster of technology" diving into the heart of machinery which, even today, equip ships around the world.

HISTORY

Zodiac

1x90' or 1x52'

For millennia, humanity has gazed at the sky in search of meaning—a universal quest that connects us across time and civilizations. Long before the Greek scholars, the Babylonians invented a celestial language still in use today: the zodiac. An international team of astronomers, historians, and archaeologists brings this forgotten revolution back to life, from cuneiform tablets to giant telescopes, revealing how these pioneers anticipated our algorithmic thinking and shaped a shared cosmic legacy.

Amazon: looking for new species

1x52'

A team of scientists go on an expedition to a yet unexplored area of the Brazilian Amazonia in order to discover new animal and vegetal species to better protect these ecosystems.

WILDLIFE

As long as there are turtledoves

1x52'

This beautiful bird with its long spotted coat hardly arouses public interest, yet, according to ornithologists, it is the symbol of the wealth of the bocage.

"As Long as There Are Turtledoves" shows us for the first time the perilous journey of this migratory bird.

This migratory route is finally revealed!

The stages of this fascinating journey provide the opportunity for encounters: scientists, hunters, farmers, ornithologists, share with us the passion they have with the turtle dove.

This international cooperation embodies the hope of preserving this species.

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

Bora bora, lab for the future

1x52'

Bora Bora is the most popular destination in French Polynesia, certainly because of its lagoon, considered the most beautiful lagoon in the world. In this context, the islet could have sunk under concrete and pollution, and the reef could have been irreparably impacted. However, thanks to the will of a handful of inhabitants, including the mayor of the island, Bora Bora is today a model of sustainable development, with water treatment technologies that are 15 years ahead of France, programs for restoring corals and safeguarding wildlife, educational actions and rehabilitation of Polynesian traditions such as the “rahui” and the establishment of a monitoring network using new technologies. All this makes the island a veritable open-air laboratory that shows the way for all tropical coastal environments around the world.

ARCHITECTURE

Building tomorrow

7x52'

Building Tomorrow opens the doors to unique places to discover the meaning and share the secrets of the most ecological architectures in the world. How to design architectures that are both revolutionary and practical? What solutions can be put into practice to make these places comfortable and respectful of the environment? Whether professionals or private; isolated or hidden in the very heart of our urban centers... all over the world, eco-housing is constantly reinventing itself. Avant-garde, visionary, the pioneers of ecological construction innovate and share their sustainable solutions with as many people as possible.

Cities turn green

3x52'

Urban gardens have their own heroes! To those garden lovers, cities are no longer assimilated to concrete, traffic jams and the grumpy moods they can provoke to impatient drivers! Pioneers, innovative minds and initiators, they have achieved to bring nature and social links back into the cities... Thanks to an incredible creativity, those nature adventurers have ideas and means of action ahead in order to revegetalize neighborhoods! Shepherds, beekeepers, or simple gardeners from the street corner: the documentary CITIES TURN GREEN brings us to the meeting of those incredible dedicated people, who reflect a new philosophy and believe in an ecological way of life, which seduces more and more people among cities! Crossed portraits of the new heroes of nowadays' urban agriculture!

SUSTAINABILITY

Eating : the power to the ocean

1x90' or 1x52'

Trash collection will not save the ocean, but what's in our plate will. Although the connections between what we eat and the ocean are invisible, they are not less real.

We don't think about it because we don't see it, but our diet can have serious consequences on the health of the ocean, those who inhabit it and those who depend on it. Fortunately, it is not too late to move the lines. Women and men have already created the foundations of a more reasoned and more reasonable diet: plant-based, local and organic food as much as possible. We meet scientists, activists, entrepreneurs, women and politicians to show how fishing, industrial farming, the use of pesticides and chemical fertilizers and the transport of goods modify natural balances and threaten marine ecosystems. Of course, we don't stop at the observation. We are bringing out a new story. We show that it is possible to limit problems by making the right choices, at all levels. Because yes, we can all enjoy eating without disrupting the ocean.

TRAVEL

Family trip

1x102' or 2x52'

Many things have been tried to solve ecological and economic crises. Without success from others, Fred and Laure decided to embark with their two children on a journey, a life, where these crises were solvable: for 5 years, they filmed real solutions and those who put them into practice in more than 40 countries. The result is a window to the world of tomorrow, as it could be.

A family, a trailer, five years and five continents, Fred, Laure, Martin, and China continue their tour of the world to meet those who reconcile man and nature. Realizing the dream of many families, proving that it is still possible to travel around the world, and discover and inspire the next generation to live in harmony with it.

WILDLIFE

Flying home, Scarlet Macaw

1x52' or 1x44'

FLYING HOME, SCARLET MACAW tells the story of the reintroduction of the parrot Scarlet Macaw in Palenque, Mexico, an area where the species disappeared 85 years ago. The project has taken more than 20 years of development and has been a real success as far as the protection and care of the species is concerned. This was the first reintroduction project in Mexico and one of the first in the world. Through images of an amazing beauty and quality, the documentary focuses on the most important steps of this project thanks to interviews of experts, re-enactments of historical scenes during the Mayan empire, ... and witnesses the actual reintroduction of the birds into their natural environment!

SUSTAINABLE / SOCIETY

Forest heroines

1x52'

This documentary recounts the struggles and victories of 4 women who protect plants and replant forests. They fight against deforestation and for better management of plant heritage. With them, we understand the importance of the stakes: 40% of the global surface of forests has been destroyed. Every year, the equivalent of the area of Portugal disappears. Is it so easy to unite people of good will to plant trees on which we are vitally dependent?

WILDLIFE

Fragiles: the Brenne ponds

1x52'

This film is the story of a nature photographer, installed more than forty years ago, he observes and recounts his love for this remarkable region, he also shares his concerns. When he arrives in Brenne, he is fascinated by the incessant ballets of the terns feeding their young among the grebes and ducks... In the fall the deer eager for conquests gallop in all directions... It is also the season when common cranes put on a show. With winter, a Siberian atmosphere envelops and freezes the ponds. Only a few small holes of open water remain, egrets and herons gather in dozens to spear the fish.

Green heroes

15x52'

It's been too long already since these two territories have been opposing each other. Today even more than yesterday that we have to face a crisis that has never been seen before, we should reconnect the urban world with the rural world for a common future that is more respectful of the living. Whether they are farmers, breeders, architects or even urban farmers, we are going to follow, in every corner of the earth, the daily life of these women and men of whom know-how is precious for the safekeeping of our planet. What if the sustainability of our cities came from our countryside? What if we committed to a greener future? Let's meet the Green heroes, the precursors of a more sustainable world and the true safe keepers of our natural resources.

Islands untold

2x52'

The French Overseas Territories still hold little-known treasures, secret territories whose discovery is well worthwhile. To explore them, you must be willing to step away from the obvious, meet those who know their mysteries, and be willing to surpass yourself. This is the goal set for themselves by the passionate duo Sabine Quindou and Yves Paccalet.

WILDLIFE

Life on the rocks

1x52'

The mountain goat is a legendary being and one of the toughest animals. It eats anything, endures extreme cold and heat, and inhabits the steepest landscapes in the world, where no one can follow it. In the last National Park in Europe, Guadarrama Peaks, there is a thriving colony of male goats. We will attend their impressive fights, their funny courtships and their incorrect sexuality. We will see how a large male grows and dies, as a mirror of what happens to the species that is increasingly threatened with extinction.

BIODIVERSITY

Near my dung

1x52'

A source of wonder, games or artistic creation, the dung is teeming with intense activity. Its inhabitants are surprising and amusing heroes whose unsuspected morals we will discover. Myriad insects need dung to feed, meet others and lay eggs. For others it is a coveted hunting ground. Irreplaceable recyclers, dung and the animals that depend on it are a necessary link in our planet's ecosystems. They are essential to life. Dung brings together those who enjoy it, questions those who contemplate it, enchants those who transform it. Yes, but here it is, Ivermectin, this anti-parasitic product administered by some to cows, found intact in the dung and kills the dung beetles which consume it. And the chain continues: hoopoes, foxes, badgers, bats and hedgehogs which are fond of dung beetles are also impacted. Dung beetles are gradually disappearing.

TRAVEL

Off the roads

4x52'

Off The Roads takes you on a trip across Europe to discover its most beautiful natural areas. Another way to travel, you will stay away from busy city centres and take time to breathe and to enjoy breathtaking natural spaces in their purest form.

The non-hosted documentary series will highlight the richness and uniqueness of European biodiversity while raising awareness about the environmental challenges they are / will be facing. Beautifully shot in 4K, this documentary series is an invitation to travel and feel nature sustainably.

SUSTAINABILITY

Okpik, Little village in the Arctic

1x52'

Using local materials and traditional knowledge Inuit/ Gwich'in Hunter, Kylik Kisoun will re-establish and re-imagine the lost practice of building an Inuvialuit sod-house with the intention of creating housing security in his traditional territory of the Beaufort Delta. Kylik builds his future at his off-grid camp and creates an opportunity for language and cultural revitalization.

SUSTAINABLE/ARCHITECTURE

Planet home

75x26' or 60x13' or 75x8'

Pollution, climate change, while some predict the apocalypse, others are building the future. They are the heroes of PLANET HOME, and they already have solutions for housing in the future. Our adventures are grounded on the architecture and the exemplary nature of the sites we discover. Beyond just buildings, these places house people who are inspiring in matters of sustainable development. We enter inside their daily life and home and also meet those outside who share their philosophy. Whether we are highlighting the technological excellence of a location, an architect's crazy ideas, or a family's new lifestyle, PLANET HOME is the only documentary series which offers a map of ecological and sustainable habitats throughout the world.

WILDLIFE

Saving the European Mink

1x52'

Beyond the presentation of an endearing mammal, this film is a plea to rethink the place given to nature. Since November 2011, the European mink has been classified by the International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN) in the category of French species in critical danger of extinction. Will this species soon enter the sad pantheon of species extinct in our territory?

WILDLIFE

Storks & lions : adapt or die

1x52'

Wildlife is deeply affected by human activity. In the last 1500 years 900 species have disappeared for ever, many others, like lions, could meet the same end soon. However, some animals, such as white storks, have adapted to our presence. They have changed their behavior, their migrating habits, their reproductive pattern, the places where they nest and even their diet. And so, they are proliferating! On the contrary, it would seem that lions do not know how to adapt to us. Out of half a million, today only 20,000 survive! Every species influences the rest, but we are quickly modifying landscapes and ecosystems and changing all rules. We may be forcing things a little too much?

TRAVEL/FOOD

Taste hunters

25x52' or 25x26' or 50x13'

In an era when intensive farming is favored to feed an ever-increasing world population - we barely start to get conscious of what we put in our plates. The world is changing, growing and rediscovering its agricultural capacities. Whether it is by perpetuating ancestral farming methods or by inventing new ways to produce better and healthier, let's tour the world to find, meet and discuss with these committed farmers. They are the key to the planet's survival. Whether they are farmers, market gardeners, bakers or fishermen, they share the same passion for their job and the constant search for perfection. These men and women, who seem to always want more quality, decided to turn their job into a battle: the battle for taste!

The Amazon

6x45'

Images of a burning Amazon rainforest led to world-wide anger in 2019. In this six-part: investigative documentary, Latin America correspondent Sandra follows the highway which cuts straight to the region, the BR163, to find the stories behind the news and investigate the ecological disasters happening in the region.

WILDLIFE

The Beaver case

1x52'

The European beaver is a well-established host on French waterways. However, the animal has come to the brink of extinction and owes its survival only to changes in approach to environmental protection. Hunted and disturbed for centuries, the beaver is now making a triumphant return , both in our countryside and near cities. His work as an architect creates an environment favorable to biodiversity and his presence contributes to the preservation of many species.

But the river engineer's constructions disrupt human activities. In order not to repeat the mistakes of the past, beavers and humans must today learn to live together.

AGRICULTURE

The farm brothers

1x52'

When Grégoire and Matthias launch the new market gardening season, each of them is working hard on his farm to give substance to his vision of agroecology.

The two market gardeners are brothers. The emulation that emanates from their relationship – often accomplice, sometimes rival – contributes to their commitment to sustainable agriculture.

Behind the camera, their third brother, Thibault, the filmmaker, is there to hear their secrets and explore the bond that unites them.

ENVIRONMENT

The green island lab

1x52'

The island of Réunion is one of the first overseas territories to commit to the fight against climate change. Increasingly exposed to the effects of global warming, it aims to completely phase out fossil fuels by 2030. This transition is built on an energy mix that combines abundant natural resources—sun, wind, water, and biomass—with technological innovation. The Réunion model relies on an alliance between researchers, industry leaders, and public decision-makers. It transforms the constraints of insularity into opportunities, making Réunion a true, full-scale laboratory for the energy transition of the territories of the future.

TRAVEL / SPORTS

The green wave

8x26'

The series follows a surf lover family who is trying to teach the necessity to protect our planet to their daughter and the viewers through their travels. They discover a new country in each episode (always by the sea) and meet with people who are acting for our planet. It's also the opportunity for them to enjoy their passion in a new environment. The goal of the series is to deal with the environment issue positively and enthusiastically.

WILDLIFE

The threat of the pantanal

1x52'

The Brazilian Pantanal is an exuberant, wild and spectacular sanctuary. But this year, the rains have not come and the waters have not risen, so the behavior of the animals here is going to be profoundly altered. Millions of alligators, howling monkeys and the fearsome marabunta live this delicate ecosystem. Birds, insects and enormous tarantulas of a thousand colors will have to manage to eat and drink this so strange year... Many of the world natural paradises today are hot spots that have been severely damaged and could be about to disappear...

FOOD/SUSTAINABLE

Urban heroes

15x52'

Agriculture is a booming trend, no matter where it takes place. All over the world, agriculture is changing whether it's coming back to the outskirts, on the rooftops or right in business centers. It is also winning back the country side thanks to participative projects. 70% of the world's population are fed thanks to agriculture in all its forms. The world is growing and rediscovering its historical soil. Documentary series URBAN HEROES goes to the most beautiful landscapes in the world and meets women and men who are rewriting the rules of our way of consuming and recasting a subsistence and local economy in their country.

AGRICULTURE

Vegetables in the city

1x52'

Urban agriculture is a concrete response to the need for city dwellers to reconnect with nature as well as to the desire for “local” food acclaimed by the French. In Paris, in some of the most densely populated neighborhoods in Europe, various initiatives are trying to design a more human and more autonomous city to feed itself.

Wildlife rescue

1x52'

Wildlife rescue is a documentary that takes us to the heart of the activities of Refuge Pageau and its employees on a unique and surprising daily basis. From the emergency call that follows the discovery of an animal in distress to its rescue, the film makes us discover the situations facing the team, the emotion surrounding the interventions, as well as the releases, with Marie-Frédérique, an enthusiast who has been involved in the cause of wild animals since her childhood.

WILDLIFE

Zoo, a gilded cage

1x52'

Are zoos suitable environments for wild animals? This documentary focuses on the exploitation of animals for entertainment. Although circus animals are now considered relics of a barbaric era, we continue to support very profitable businesses that exploit wild animals, which, even in the best conditions, live lives that are not their own. The documentary aims to enlighten zoo visitors by indicating what they should notice when visiting these facilities. With the help of specialists whose insights offer extremely diverse perspectives, the documentary does not aim to condemn zoos but rather to encourage good behaviors by turning each visitor into a witness of the practices, whether acceptable or reprehensible, specific to each organization.

The documentary series offers a poignant immersion into the journey of transgender people before, during, and after their gender-affirming surgery. Through intimate testimonies and never-before-seen footage, the series highlights the challenges, hopes, and transformations experienced by patients, while revealing the work of the healthcare professionals involved in this process. This documentary stands out for its sensitive and respectful approach, aiming to demystify gender-affirming surgeries and raise public awareness of the realities experienced by trans people.

HISTORY

Alexandre Dumas, lust for life

1x52'

Through the lesser-known works of one of the world's most famous writers, Dumas, des mets et des mots explores Alexandre Dumas' life from a fresh perspective. From the forests of Picardy to Roscoff and the Caucasus mountains, the documentary takes us on a journey tracing the footsteps of this unique artist, known for his insatiable appetite. A key event is a banquet held in Dumas' childhood home, where a chef reimagines dishes from his Grand Dictionnaire de Cuisine, published posthumously. Revisiting this work reveals a complex figure shaped by a turbulent family history, a thirst for social justice, and an exuberance for life that epitomized the 19th century. How did this grandson of a slave become a literary giant?

HEALTH

Beginner at autism

1x52'

A year ago, Louis T. received his diagnosis in his psychologist's office: he has had Asperger's syndrome, a form of autism spectrum disorder, his entire life. Since coming out to the media last year, he's been flooded with questions from the public every day.

Faced with these inquiries, Louis feels completely at a loss. Yes, the diagnosis has been incredibly liberating for him, but there's one truth that troubles him: «The truth is, I know nothing about autism. I'm new to this!» he says. It's to answer these questions—and especially his own about autism—that the comedian embarks on a documentary journey, like an apprentice eager to learn everything about this new chapter of his life.

Best friends

1x52'

Love may be more popular, but 96% of French people believe friendship is vital to their well-being. Over the years, many have seen their friendships strengthen as they've faced life's challenges together. Louis and Fabien, friends since childhood, are close to completing their dream project: a shared house for their families near Rouen. Meanwhile, Michael, Mathieu, Sebastien, and Fabien are working on restoring a 12th-century castle in the Drôme region, a challenging but exciting adventure. In Charente, the «bande des mussets,» a group of inseparable friends aged 22 to 27, center their lives around their bond, celebrating every milestone together. Some friendships go even deeper: Lucie (46) made the life-changing decision to donate a kidney to her long-time friend Aude (44), strengthening their already unique connection.

Bless our breasts

1x90' or 1x52'

Bless our breasts is a documentary that explores the perception and representation of the female chest in society. It examines how this part of the body, often sexualized, is shaped by social and cultural expectations. The film looks at the pressures faced from a young age, when the chest becomes a symbol of femininity, and addresses practices such as “breast flattening” and cosmetic surgery, which alter bodies to fit certain societal ideals. Through testimonies and analysis, the documentary examines how these norms affect body image and invites reflection on the relationship women have with their own bodies.

Bossless broom

1x90'

In the 1970s, cleaning staff at the Université Catholique de Louvain threw out their bosses and set up their own cleaning cooperative, Le Balai Libéré. 50 years later, the cleaning staff at UCLouvain meet yesterday's workers: is working without a boss still an option?

HISTORY

Eiffel, the last secrets

1x52'

For everyone, Eiffel is the Tower, the symbol of Paris. But who was Gustave Eiffel, the man who built this mythical monument?

On the occasion of the centenary of his death, and thanks to partly unpublished archives, Eiffel, the last secrets paints an intimate portrait of a little-known man, and lifts the veil on some of the shadows of his story. For if Eiffel was a visionary entrepreneur and engineer, he was also a mysterious man who shaped his own myth. Glory, fall, redemption...

This film explores both legend and history.

La Queenciañera

1x90'

Shot on the occasion of her 50th birthday, this film follows Bamby Salcedo as she makes plans to throw herself a “Queenciañera” party and reflects on her amazing journey from Guadalajara, Mexico to living as an addict in LA’s Skid Row to winning her first job with the LGBTQIA+ community when she was fresh out of recovery. She started from the bottom, reached for the top, and is still going to this day. Now a nationally and internationally known Latina Transgender activist and founder of the TransLatin@ Coalition, Salcedo takes the phrase “never give up” to a whole new level. Salcedo is inspiring new generations to get involved in LGBTQIA+ activism, and it’s a good thing because with the recent tremendous backlash against trans people, it is needed more than ever.

Women in prison

1x52'

Even though they are outnumbered, France still has 2,600 female inmates, representing around 3% of the prison population. Only two prisons are specifically reserved for them: the Rennes penitentiary and the Versailles prison. Most inmates serve their sentences in one of the 59 "women's quarters", including Réau in Seine-et-Marne, where we were exceptionally able to set up our cameras for several weeks.

HISTORY

Wreck hunters

40x22'

Wreck hunter Samuel Côté takes us into the depths of the Saint Lawrence River, in search of treasures buried for decades or even centuries. Accompanied by his team of divers, he tracks down the ships lying in the river's abyss and brings their mysteries back to life. The series immerses viewers in Quebec's maritime history, through stories of wars, pirates, treasures, and archaeology. The adventure is risky, but the discoveries are thrilling and allow Samuel to fulfill his mission: to restore the river's history.

Christmas tree's journey

1x52'

A curious fate that is the one of the Christmas tree: more than 10 years of cultivation to end up in our living rooms looking at the gifts placed at his feet while drying out. 10 years during which our tree travels across Europe. Its journey begins in the Georgian forests, where the seeds are collected from the tops of hundred-year-old trees. It continues in Denmark, the undisputed market leader which floods Europe with its trees. In the Morvan, some French producers are trying to counter competition by imposing their know-how. Others prefer to bet on the organic label. Finally, its journey ends on the sidewalks of our cities trying to give it a second life.

The golden owl hunt

1x90'

This documentary tells the astonishing story of a game that escaped its creators, transforming into the world's longest treasure hunt. On one side, a marketing plan established in 1993 based on the idea of two men: an ambitious advertising executive who conceptualized a truly accomplished treasure hunt, and a wealthy artist in search of fame. On the other, hundreds of thousands of players in France and abroad. At the center, a solid gold owl worth 1 million old francs, or nearly 150,000 euros, is up for grabs. Nothing will go as planned. The treasure hunt will last much longer than predicted in the business plan, and the game's two creators will engage in a veritable battle of egos. The immense community of «owl-hunters»—as they call themselves—that formed in 1993 will take over the game, now the world's longest treasure hunt. The adventure has lasted for more than thirty years, punctuated by interventions from bailiffs, lawyers, and conspiracy theories.
